Clear the air. Petcoke heating ban, emissions tax to take effect June 2014, with province saying moves will reduce emissions by up to 100,000 tonnes

SHANE GIBSON

The Province of Manitoba moved Tuesday to become the first jurisdiction in North America to ban the use of petroleum coke (petcoke) and coal for heating, and announced plans to charge a tax on industrial use of both.

"The effort of international agreements to deal with this environmental catastrophe that is looming cannot be looked to as the biggest part of the solution," said Conservation and Water Stewardship Minister Gord Mackintosh. "We really have to focus now on regional emission reductions."

The petcoke heating ban and new petcoke emissions tax will go into effect June 30 next year, and the phasing in of the heating-coal ban will begin Jan. 1, with a grace period up to July 1, 2017, providing an approved conversion plan is filed with the government by June 30, 2014.

Mackintosh said $500,000 of the cash brought in by the emissions taxes would be redirected to help coal users convert to biomass energy instead of fossil fuels.

Tuesday's announcements come as the province touts the completion of all 67 actions in the 2008 Beyond Kyoto Climate Change Action Plans and looks to the public for ideas for the next phase at consultations chaired by International Institute for Sustainability Development CEO Scott Vaughan, scheduled to start this fall.

"We need a process where there's a two-way exchange on seeking input," explained Vaughan, who hopes to have a report back to government within a year. "I strongly believe that public policy is enforced by public consultations."

How does losing thousands of Canadian jobs in the cellphone industry help Canada? It doesn't.

When I found out that our government is getting a giant U.S. cellphone company to come to Canada, I thought, how's this going to affect jobs? Experts are saying most of their good jobs will stay south of the border. Most of their profits too. But it gets better. Better for them. Even though this company is four times as big as all of Canada's cellphone companies combined, they're effectively getting a huge discount to enter Canada. The U.S. giant gets to use the existing infrastructure it took Canadians over 25 years to build, and they didn't contribute a cent. So Canadian taxpayers will effectively be subsidizing the whole thing. Will there be thousands of jobs lost? Think about it.

The whole thing doesn't sound fair for Canadians. Ottawa should do something about the loopholes. Fast.

Counselling to be offered in wake of family tragedy

Winnipeg police and social services from the city and the province are offering counselling to anyone who needs it after a mother and her two children died in Westwood last week.

Lisa Gibson's two children, Anna, 2, and Nicholas, three months, were reportedly found dead in a bathtub in their parents' home on Coleridge Park Drive on Wednesday. Lisa Gibson's body was pulled from the Red River three days later.

"As a community, we are trying to come to terms with what took place and we search for answers that may never come," reads a statement from the City of Winnipeg and Winnipeg police. "While we cannot change what occurred, we can try to provide some comfort to one another with the hope that time will heal some of our wounds."

Anyone who wishes for help can head to Kirkfield Westwood Community Centre on July 31 from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. There, they can talk to staff from the Winnipeg Regional Health Authority, the Mobile Crisis Unit and Manitoba Family Services. From there, they can find access to other services if needed.

Kirkfield Westwood Community Centre is located at 165 Sansome Ave.

In the meantime, a memorial is being planned for the family. It will take place on Thursday in Stonewall.

Pizza-driver killing. Teen to spend 7 years in jail before right to parole

A 17-year-old will spend seven years in jail before being eligible for parole after he murdered a pizza driver with an axe in 2011.

Dylan Vernon Sinclair, who pleaded guilty to the second-degree murder of Gerald Crayford in June, has been in custody for 26 months. Now that he has been tried and sentenced as an adult, he can be named.

The Crown was seeking the maximum seven years before parole for Sinclair, saying he showed a lack of remorse and joked about the killing. The defence said the teen faced numerous challenges and asked for parole eligibility after five years. He already faces a mandatory life sentence.

Sinclair was tried as an adult in the killing of Crayford, 54. The man was a delivery driver for Pizza Hotline when he was attacked while working in May 2011. METRO

U of W can breathe easy. School on track with Kyoto gas-emissions targets

The University of Winnipeg will meet its Kyoto commitment to reduce greenhouse-gas emissions by six per cent below 1990 levels by August — and plan to drop another four per cent over the next three years.

The school's president and vice-chancellor Dr. Lloyd Axworthy, said Tuesday that reaching the goal is especially noteworthy considering the university has grown over 35 per cent larger since making the pledge back in 2005.

"As we were growing, we were also saving and conserving," he said, adding that U of W has shaved $180,000 off of its annual energy bill with the reduction. "The result is that it is good for economic development."

The university was the first major post-secondary institution in the province to implement a greenhouse-gas reduction strategy. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

Two inner-city neighbourhoods are a little greener this week with help from a partnership between the City of Winnipeg and the Province of Manitoba.

The two levels of government, which don't always see eye-to-eye, put their differences aside to share the $475,000 in improvements unveiled Tuesday at Chief Grizzly Bear's Garden on Sherbrook Street and Jacob Penner Park on Notre Dame Avenue between McGee and Victor streets.

"This space was once four vacant lots, and look at what it's become today," said Mayor Sam Katz at Chief Grizzly Bear's Garden, which was formerly known as Spence Aboriginal Spirit Park and had been identified by community groups as a prime candidate for funding under the city and province's joint Building Communities Initiative. "It is now a beautiful and meaningful reflection of the people who first envisioned it."

The $250,000 of work at Chief Grizzly Bear's Garden created a community gathering area with a ceremonial circle based on the aboriginal medicine wheel, a small play structure, benches, picnic tables, lighting, and native trees, shrubs and perennials.

Over at Jacob Penner Park, $225,000 was spent to add new pathways, entry sites and benches, a skateboard plaza, and a half-court basketball court.

Berlusconi's fate rests in court's hands

Tax-fraud appeal. Former Italian prime minister faces 4 years in prison, public office ban

A prosecutor on Tuesday pressed Italy's top criminal court to uphold Silvio Berlusconi's tax-fraud conviction, but recommended shortening his ban on holding public office.

The media mogul's defence team will have one final chance on Wednesday to try to convince the Court of Cassation to throw out the conviction by a lower-level appeals court.

The tensely awaited decision could have an impact on the fragile coalition of Prime Minister Enrico Letta, since his centre-left party depends on Berlusconi's conservatives for survival.

Berlusconi's conviction in a case of film-rights sales involving his Mediaset media empire carried a four-year term in prison as well as the ban on the former three-time prime minister and current senator on holding any elected or appointed public office for the next five years.

If Berlusconi fails to have the guilty-verdict trial overturned — or at least win a new trial — it will be the first definitive conviction after a raft of cases over the last two decades that either ended in acquittals or saw statutes of limitations expire. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bond denied. New charges for couple accused of killing sex offender, wife

More charges have been filed against a couple accused of targeting and killing a sex offender.

Bond was denied Monday for Jeremy Moody, 30, and his wife, 36-year-old Christine, on charges of first-degree burglary and two counts each of kidnapping and possession of a firearm during the commission of a violent crime.

The Moodys were arrested last week and charged with murder in the deaths of Charles Parker, 59, and his wife, Gretchen, 51. Both Parkers were shot and stabbed at their home.

Sheriff David Taylor has said Gretchen Parker wasn't specifically targeted but was killed because she was in the house.

Charles Parker was required to register as a sex offender after he was convicted of third-degree criminal sexual conduct about a decade ago.

China. Party leaders cracking down on lavish Communist lifestyles

Lavish weddings, fancy holidays and lunchtime wine on the public dime were among transgressions detailed Tuesday that led China's ruling Communist Party to discipline 2,290 officials so far this year in a frugality campaign aimed at addressing public anger.

The party's disciplinary arm, quoted in official state media, provided eight examples of such breaches, including a party chief in a township in Hebei who was stripped of his post for holding an extravagant wedding for his daughter and receiving around one million yuan ($163,000 US) in cash and gifts.

While it might seem as though many officials have been admonished this year as part of the campaign, the number is only a small drop in China's ocean of 85 million party members.

B.C. court. Injured soldiers' lawsuit should be dismissed: Lawyers

At least one veterans group promises to campaign against the Conservative government because of a stand taken by federal lawyers, who argue the country holds no extraordinary social obligation to ex-soldiers.

The lawyers, fighting a class-action lawsuit in British Columbia, asked a judge to dismiss the court action filed by injured Afghanistan veterans, saying Ottawa owes them nothing more than what they have already received under its controversial New Veterans Charter.

The lawsuit filed last fall by six veterans claims that the charter, which replaces lifetime pensions with workers compensation-style lump sums for wounds, violates the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Mike Blais, president of Canadian Veterans Advocacy, told a Parliament Hill news conference that since the First World War, the government has recognized it has a "sacred obligation" to veterans and that notion was abandoned with the adoption of the veterans charter by the Conservatives.

Anti-abortion activists are likely to pursue a Supreme Court challenge.

Until now, abortion held a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Kindergarten cop?

School district paying about $50K plus stipends for ammunition, training to prep staff to act as security guards

When classes at Clarksville High School resume in August, assistant principal Cheyne Dougan will be among more than 20 teachers, administrators and other employees in the school district carrying concealed weapons.

After a school shooting in Connecticut last December that left 20 children and six teachers dead, the idea of arming schoolhouses against gunmen was hotly debated across the country.

The National Rifle Association declared it the best response to serious threats. But even in the most conservative states, most proposals faltered in the face of resistance from educators or warnings from insurance companies that schools would face higher premiums.

Making use of a little-known Arkansas law that allows licensed, armed security guards on campus, Dougan and other teachers at the school will be considered guards.

In strongly conservative Arkansas, where gun ownership is common and gun laws are permissive, no school district had ever armed teachers, according to the state Department of Education. The closest was the Lake Hamilton School, which for years has kept several guns locked up in case of emergency. Only a handful of administrators — not teachers — have access to the weapons.

Clarksville, a community of 9,200, is going further. Supt. David Hopkins said he faced a flood of calls from parents worried about safety after the attack last year at Sandy Hook Elementary in Connecticut.

He said he and other school leaders didn't see why they couldn't rely on their own staff and teachers to protect students rather than hire someone. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bradley Manning convicted of spilling U.S. secrets to WikiLeaks

Faces up to 136 years. Private dodges serious and precedent-setting charge of aiding enemy

U.S. army Pfc. Bradley Manning was acquitted of aiding the enemy but was convicted on Tuesday of espionage, theft and other charges, more than three years after he spilled secrets to WikiLeaks.

Manning was convicted on 19 of 21 charges and faces up to 136 years in prison. His sentencing begins Wednesday.

The lead prosecutor, Maj. Ashden Fein, said Manning knew the material would be seen by al-Qaida, a key point the prosecutor needed to get a conviction of aiding the enemy. Even Osama bin Laden had some of the digital files at his compound when he was killed.

According to Daniel Ellsberg — who in the early 1970s leaked the Pentagon Papers, which showed the U.S. government repeatedly misled the public about the Vietnam War — Manning's acquittal was more significant than his convictions.

He said a conviction of aiding the enemy would mean that most people wouldn't want to risk life imprisonment or even execution for exposing government secrets.

Spain derailment. Driver was taking a work call as he sped into deadly crash

The driver was on the phone with a colleague and apparently looking at a document as his train barrelled ahead at 153 km/h — almost twice the speed limit. Suddenly, a notorious curve was upon him.

He hit the brakes too late.

The train, carrying 218 passengers, hurtled off the tracks and slammed into a concrete wall, killing 79.

On Tuesday, investigators announced their preliminary findings from analysis of the train's data-recording "black boxes," suggesting that human error appears to be the cause of the disaster.

The derailment occurred near Santiago de Compostela, Spain, late last Wednesday. Some 66 people injured in the crash are still hospitalized, 15 in critical condition.

According to the investigation so far, driver Francisco Jose Garzon Amo received a call from an official of national rail company Renfe on his work phone in the cabin, not his personal cellphone, to tell him what approach to take toward his final destination.

Garzon was provisionally charged Sunday with multiple counts of negligent homicide. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You could hire a crew to clear away unwanted vegetation, or you could bring in a herd of goats — which is what officials in Regina are currently doing to rid a conservation area of non-native greenery. Other municipalities have taken the same approach. Regina. City officials go with the herd to clear away vegetation

Caragana shrubs are no match for goats that have been brought in to clear the pesky growth from a big Regina park.

Officials with the city's Wascana Centre Authority have hired about 90 of the bleating eating machines to rid the shrubs from a conservation area of the park where the greenery has gotten out of control.

Naturalist Jared Clarke says caraganas were once planted in rows to delineate property lines, but they ended up choking out native species of grass and other plants.

Clarke says the goats are an alternative to using herbicides and seem to work better than mowing, which is a temporary fix.

The more the goats gnaw away at the leaves, the harder it is for the shrub to grow back.

The goats will be on duty until Monday, when they will stand down and be transported back to their farm in Edenwold, Sask.

Clarke says if the project is deemed a success, the goats could be brought back again in the future.

Dubious food. Oreo doughnut tops Timmie's contest shortlist

On a day when doughnut flavours included devil's food cake and caramel popcorn, it was the simpler creations that won the day for Tim Hortons' Duelling Donuts contest.

B.C.-born Jason Priestley was among the panel of judges who whittled down the long list of 16 doughnut creations to just eight on Tuesday.

Among the finalists are the S'more Of It, the Monkey C, Monkey Do-Nut, the Dark Chocolate Cherry Chunk and the Oreo Borealis.

The pastry recreation of the classic cream-filled cookie took the top honours from the panel, which also featured execs from Tim Hortons and TV host Ben Mulroney.

The contest was dreamed up after Priestley appeared in an episode of the sitcom How I Met Your Mother where he claimed he had invented the Priestley, a strawberry-vanilla doughnut with a chocolate Timbit nestled inside.

The contest winner will receive a $10,000 grand prize. Canadians can vote for their favourite of the last eight doughnuts standing online, beginning Aug. 5. THE CANADIAN PRESS

WATER'S RISING. WHERE'S THE ARK?

JUST SAYIN'

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Ho-hum. Another day, another prophet of doom.

Today's Cassandra du Jour is someone named Benjamin Strauss from something called Climate Central. Strauss concludes that without an immediate deep reduction in greenhouse gas emissions, 1,700 U.S. cities will be underwater by the end of this century.

And even if we stop adding greenhouse gases to the atmosphere right now, 80 cities including Hoboken, N.J., and Fort Lauderdale, Fla., are already toast. Frank Sinatra's hometown sinks beneath the sea! Pictures at 11!

Strauss's conclusions have been published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences (not the National Enquirer) and run through the news cycle. Headlines everywhere. Hard to miss.

You may be wondering if Strauss is just some paranoid nutcase. If he is, he's a paranoid nutcase with a PhD in ecology and evolutionary biology from Princeton, a master's in zoology from the University of Washington, and a BA in biology from Yale. A beautiful mind.

Climate Central certainly sounds reputable: "An independent organization of leading scientists and journalists researching and reporting the facts about our changing climate and its impact on the American public." Such as 1,700 cities will be sleeping with the fishes by 2100.

This is not just an American wet dream: Various studies have also earmarked several coastal Canadian cities, such as Vancouver and Halifax, for the Big Bath.

So what's going on here? Why aren't we all stampeding for higher ground? Even if 2100 seems a long way off, the sheer scale of this inundation should have us building big boats in our backyards and pairing off the raccoons and Pomeranians, especially if we live in Hoboken or Fort Lauderdale.

But nothing's going on here. The U.S. president has a "plan," but it's hardly an emergency response, and even if the U.S. starts cutting emissions and shoring up dikes, that supposedly won't hold back the tide. And, of course, our Prime Minister Stephen Harper sees the emission of greenhouse gas as a patriotic act.

We obviously don't believe Strauss or all those other guys with letters after their names. Apparently, the skeptics have done a great job of painting them as a bunch of careerists so greedy for grants they'll say anything, no matter how over the top. If anyone's all wet, it's Strauss and all those other scientists (dirty word).

Still, aren't you a bit creeped out? What if Strauss is only half right, or a quarter right? What if the skeptics, who don't have nearly as many letters after their names, are the wet ones?

Is there anybody out there who can tell us the truth? It's a simple, honest question: How high's the water, daddy? Really?

From the photograph's composition, it looks like the pups are mimicking the adult in howling ...
Yes, but that's certainly from the point of view of us humans, and how we assign human expressions to animals.

But isn't that what makes animal photography special — when we assign it human traits?
I completely agree. That is certainly one great way of interpreting these photographs. Animal photographs conjure up amazing imagery of hope and emotions in us all.

We're past the halfway mark of the year, which is still a depressing distance from the best-of lists that pepper December and January. So let's get an early start with a trio of some of the best mobile games of 2013.

Limbo
The long-awaited port of 2010's moody gem has finally arrived. Take control of a boy navigating the dangers of a beautiful but starkly harsh side-scrolling world (pictured). Seriously stark. The game is full of punishing puzzles and grisly deaths. (iOS/$4.99)

Gemini Rue
A defiantly old-school point-and-click sci-fi noir set in a future familiar to Blade Runner fans. The original version was designed for keyboard and mouse, so the controls can be awkward. But solving the mysteries of the dual-plotted story is addictive enough to overlook them. (iOS/$4.99)

Star Command
From the clever dialogue to the pixelated graphics, everything about space adventure reads as a love letter to Star Trek. Managing your crew and monitoring shield and weapon systems during frenetic battles is deep and challenging, though that's offset a bit by a linear story and shallow interactions with the races you encounter. The Smurfs 2

Director. Raja Gosnell

Stars. Neil Patrick Harris, Hank Azaria

The problem with The Smurfs is that the blue mushroom-dwelling dwarves(?) just aren't elaborate or very amusing. In that sense, they're perfectly safe film fodder for prepubescents. In this straightforward sequel, Papa Smurf and company travel to Paris to rescue Smurfette (a whiny-sounding Katy Perry) from diabolical wizard Gargamel (Hank Azaria, trying his best). The sequel would've been buoyed by new characters except that one (named Hackus) is ceaselessly irritating. Still, Hackus shouldn't worry — with $150 million in corporate tie-ins already, his ugly mug will surely appear on everything from plush dolls to nasal strips. STEVE GOW/METRO

Not a girl, not yet a woman, but totally fine, guys

Miley Cyrus' transformation from a sweet-faced child star into a wild-child sensation has garnered plenty of debate, but she says it's not really all that deep — she just grew up, y'all.

"I think people forget what it feels like to be 20," she said in a recent interview. "People just evolve and that's all that's happened to me. But people think a mad scientist somehow cooked up this potion and turned me into a different human. ... All I did was get a haircut and buy some clothes." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Interview. Denzel Washington and Mark Wahlberg talk about going funny with new buddy comedy 2 Guns

MATT PRIGGE
Metro World News

Denzel Washington is funny. He just doesn't do funny movies.

People have told him how good he is with a joke. He agrees and he doesn't.

"I'm quick. But being funny on purpose, take after take — I don't know. It's new territory."

Indeed, he hasn't done a full-on funny film since the ghost comedy Heart Condition, opposite Bob Hoskins in 1990. It's the only one on his resumé.

2 Guns isn't a full-on comedy. It's a '70s-style throwback thriller, starring Washington and Mark Wahlberg as undercover government agents embroiled in the pursuit of a booty of stolen cash. But he and Wahlberg, longtime friends finally working together, have great chemistry, and the tone of the film allows them to goof around in between shoot-outs and scenes where Bill Paxton's fearsome CIA heavy plays Russian Roulette with his crotch.

"I'd been looking to stick my toe in the water," Washington says about being funnier. "Especially coming off Flight, I was looking to do something where I had more fun."

Wahlberg had already been attached to the production, based on Steven Grant's comics, which was a big selling point for him.

"Mark is not just funny, but he has a warmth and a heart about him that I've loved. I watched Ted the other night. That's a sick movie."

Not that he wanted to go that far.

"I'm not ready to be spanked yet — not right out of the gate. But (Wahlberg) helped free me up, to go for it, to not worry about being silly."

Wahlberg was happy it wasn't the traditional kind of buddy comedy.

"Usually they'll take the comedy guy, the really out-there comedy guy, and put him with the straight guy. We didn't want to do that," Wahlberg explains. "We felt like the two had to be really formidable opponents, to earn that camaraderie, to earn that trust in one another."

Asked how they handle comedy or drama, Wahlberg says there's little difference.

"I approach everything the same: I try to make it as real as possible," he explains. "If you're going to make people laugh or cry, it's the same thing. But if I start doing pratfalls, someone please pull the plug."

Washington just tries to integrate himself in his roles.

"I try to bring my own personality to the parts, some kind of personal connection," he explains. "The audience can maybe believe it a bit more."

When asked which role is closet to the real him, he can't help but joke.

"Training Day. That's who I am. That's the real Denzel."

2 Guns took two roads to production

IN FOCUS

This weekend Denzel Washington and Mark Wahlberg co-star as a DEA agent and an undercover Naval Intelligence officer who are investigating one another in 2 Guns.

Conceived as a vehicle for Owen Wilson and Vince Vaughn after the success of Wedding Crashers, the movie was originally meant to take advantage of the comedic chemistry between the two, but slowly morphed into something else as it made its way to Wahlberg and Washington.

It joins a long list of movies to change tone as they swap casts.

We think of Beverly Hills Cop as the hilarious Eddie Murphy movie about a streetwise Detroit cop displaced to hoity-toity Los Angeles. Initially however, the movie was meant to star Sylvester Stallone.

Stallone also turned down the part of Jack Colton in the romantic action-adventure Romancing the Stone and was replaced by Michael Douglas.

Taxi Driver made Cybill Shepherd a star, but the part almost went to Farah Fawcett Majors because, producer Julia Phillips claims, director Martin Scorsese preferred Majors' "shapely bottom."

Finally, Daniel Day Lewis is an acting legend with five Oscar nominations and three wins to his credit, but imagine if he hadn't turned down the roles of Zod in the recent Superman epic Man of Steel or Shakespeare in Love's love interest, a part that went to Joseph Fiennes.

Bieber's crew busted with pot at the border

Marijuana and drug paraphernalia were seized from one of Justin Bieber's tour buses during a stop at the U.S.-Canada border, according to E! News.

Bieber himself wasn't on the bus, and his rep insists, "It wasn't Justin's bus," but Customs officials say it was part of his convoy.

"The tour bus, associated with musician Justin Bieber, was en route to a concert schedule later Sunday night in Detroit," a spokesman says. "Officers seized marijuana and paraphernalia and issued a penalty to the driver. The bus and passengers were released."

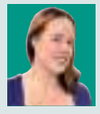
Applaud for Lady Gaga, she needs it



THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Well, hello there, new artwork for Lady Gaga's new single, Applause, which looks like something Barbra Streisand would do circa 1983

Gaga unveiled this cover on Sunday to Women's Wear Daily, which was created by photography duo Inez van Lamsweerde and Vinoodh Matadin, who also filmed the single's music video. The single will drop on Aug. 19.

"What I'm saying in the song essentially is that I live for the applause. I live for the way you cheer and scream for me. Give me that thing that I love. Put your hands up, make them touch," she told the magazine about her inspiration for the single, which is a much, much better title than just calling it Clappin'.

Under the Dome still under said dome

Welp, it looks like no one is escaping that stupid dome anytime soon — CBS has renewed Under the Dome for a second season.

"We're excited to tell more stories about the mystery of the dome and the secrets in Chester's Mill, and are thrilled to have the master storyteller himself, Stephen King, tell the first one of next season," CBS Entertainment President Nina Tassler said in a statement.

The renewal makes sense as the show is a bona-fide hit for the network, averaging about 13.8 million viewers, according to Nielsen numbers provided to the network.

Considering this was to be a mini-series done and over in 13 tight episodes, this renewal is just stretching it out to make advertising dollars. So instead of a mini-series, it will now be a TV show. So what are they going to call the second season, Under the Dome: Still Not Over It?

Evan Rachel Wood

Another celebrity couple trying to copy royals

Evan Rachel Wood is officially a mom. The 25-year-old actress gave birth to her first child Monday, her rep confirms to Us Weekly.

"Evan Rachel Wood and her husband, Jamie Bell, are parents to a beautiful boy," the rep says. "Parents and baby are all doing well."

Bell couldn't contain his enthusiasm, praising his wife on Twitter with, "What a day. Evan, you are my warrior! You never cease to amaze. Thank you for birthing our son so naturally and peacefully. You did it!"

Johnny Depp

Johnny Depp just wants to speak his own words

Maybe he was expecting a better box office performance from The Lone Ranger.

Johnny Depp has started talking about retiring from acting, telling the BBC, "I wouldn't say that I'm dropping out any second, but I would say it's probably not too far away."

Depp, who also mulled retirement in his recent Rolling Stone cover story, has a rather interesting reason for wanting to give acting a rest.

"You realize that you've said written words more than you've actually had a chance to say your own words, you start thinking of that as a kind of insane option for a human being."

Unshakeable Christchurch

New Zealand. After a devastating earthquake in 2011, the city is ready to welcome visitors

RUTH ATHERLEY
life@metronews.ca

The Re:START mall is a fun shopping area in the heart of Christchurch. DAVID SWANSON

The city of Christchurch, New Zealand, is in full swing with its exciting rebuild plan after the earthquakes it experienced a little over two years ago. The city and the surrounding region of Canterbury offer many things to do, places to stay and eat, and are absolutely ready to welcome visitors.

In true Kiwi form, the people of Christchurch are focusing on finding the silver lining and while remembering and honouring the past, they are embracing the future. The focus is now on creating a world-class city that engages both locals and visitors. A blueprint plan that concentrates on creating an accessible, world-class city that showcases all the fabulous activities, restaurants, accommodation and business opportunities that Christchurch has to offer has been developed and is in the process of being brought to life.

Experience Christchurch of today

While the people of Christchurch are looking forward, they realize that many visitors want to better understand what happened two years ago. Quake City is an interactive experience that outlines the science and the human interest elements behind the earthquakes. Now visitors can take the tour through the "red zone" — now the rebuild zone. Here you can see the work being done and get an up-close view of the uncrushable Kiwi spirit that shines through as the city is re-created. In fact, each day many of the areas of the city are being reopened to the public and, as this happens, you can see the joy and pride in the faces of the people who call Christchurch home.

You can also check out the Cardboard Cathedral. This structure is being built to temporarily replace the historic Christchurch Cathedral, which was damaged during the earthquakes. Church services will be held in the Cardboard Cathedral, which is made of paper tubes coated with waterproof polyurethane, and was opened in June 2013 with seating for 700.

Shop and sip

For those interested in shopping, the Re:START mall is an area that offers some of the best New Zealand designers. Re:START may not be the first shipping container shopping mall in the world, but it is one of the most creative, appealing and — a priority in New Zealand — fun! More than 50 retailers are located right in the heart of the city, including great cafés, the perfect place to rest your weary feet after a morning of trying on designer duds and checking out the bright, vibrant and energetic area. There is also New Regent Street, which is a quaint street full of shops and boutiques – and, of course, cafés. After all, shopping and coffee were made for each other.

Discover the magic of the Canterbury region

While Christchurch is a fabulous city, visitors are also encouraged to venture out into the Canterbury region. And who better to show it to you than a fifth generation Canterburian — a real local. A local's local, if you will. David Hiatt runs Canterbury Guiding Company, a specialized tour provider that offers excursions that you just can't get anywhere else. He knows winemakers and cheese makers, farmers and artisans and, relevant to his guests' interests, he makes magic happen. David and his team know every inch of the Canterbury region — the wineries, the restaurants, the trails, the farms and the people. If the guests want it, David can make it happen. One day it might be a behind-the-scenes chat and tasting with a cheese maker. The next day, it might be a balloon ride to view the mountains and sea or a wine tasting with the winemaker. One thing is for certain — David is the guy to take people to see the Canterbury that the residents know and love.

Stay in style. Splurge for some fine accommodations in New Zealand

While there are plenty of budget and reasonably-priced places to stay on both the North and South Islands of New Zealand, there is a growing trend for even the most budget-conscious visitors to take a night or two and indulge themselves by staying at one of the country's nicer lodges or hotels.

The Boatshed on Waiheke Island, just a 40-minute ferry ride from Auckland, offers visitors a charming piece of Kiwi life. The five suites and two bungalows are designed to reflect "baches" — a New Zealand term for a holiday home.

It offers an eclectic mix of different buildings, spaces and room types — all with a view of the ocean. And exclusive to guests is fine dining at The Boatshed's restaurant.

Service is in a relaxed, alfresco setting, with exceptional New Zealand seafood and gourmet meat cuts accompanied by organic, locally sourced produce (some grown at The Boatshed). The fact that this luxury accommodation is located on Waiheke Island, which is home to a number of beautiful vineyards, just makes it that much more of a treat.

And also for wine lovers, there is Black Barn, located in the wine producing region of Hawke's Bay. This winery and vineyard produces fabulous wines and also offers accommodation — right in the vineyard. There are 14 distinctive, self-contained accommodations offering character and style.

Short on travel dough? Try these under-the-radar spots

"Travelling shouldn't be reserved for people who are affluent," says Freddie Pikovsky, an editor at the travel blog Off Track Planet and co-author of Off Track Planet's Travel Guide for the Young, Sexy, and Broke.

His book is a frank guide for the ramen eaters among us, and we mean frank — think Greece's best hookup spots and avoiding narcs in Thailand.

Not all of us can afford that five-star hotel, so we asked Pikovsky to give us some alternative places to put our extra vacation days toward.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Dream trip: Australia

Try: Taganga, Colombia

The small fishing village of Taganga, Pikovsky says, is "one of the cheapest places in the world to get SCUBA-certified." It's cheap to stay in the area too, and it retains a lot of pre-commercialization. "The last time I was there, they didn't even have roads yet — it's still dirt roads," Pikovsky says. And we know what you're thinking — worried about being kidnapped? "Things have changed there so much," he says. "The guerrillas that were kidnapping people were decentralized by the government, so kidnapping is not as valuable a thing for them anymore." Other people's hesitation to visit means the crowds are few, and the luxury resorts are popping up — all of which means that now is a good time to go.

Dream trip: Amsterdam

Try: Vancouver

Besides Colombia, another destination that's going through a reputation shift is Amsterdam. Gone are the days of hitting a café for an illegal smoke: "They've actually changed their law, and it's now only for locals," Pikovsky says. But, he says, Vancouver is the new it-spot for café culture. "You can do basically everything that you were once able to do in Amsterdam as a tourist but can't do anymore."

Dream trip: Tokyo

No, really, go there.
"Since the earthquake, they've been trying to promote tourism heavily," Pikovsky says. "I haven't personally been to Japan, (but) there are probably affordable options now for flying over there."

Advice

Get the cheapest flight

"Go toward the shoulder of a season," Pikovsky says. "You don't necessarily want to go at the height of a season, and you might not necessarily go at the off point, but somewhere toward the end or a little bit early on in the height of the season, you'll find discounted airfare."

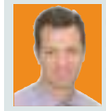
Dream trip: Paris

Try: Buenos Aires

"The city is built almost like the Paris of South America," Pikovsky says. For your French fix, hit the neighbourhood of Palermo, which resembles Paris and has "a lot of European influence," he says. Other sites to see: the Pink Palace, Argentina's version of the White House, and Avenida 9 de Julio, the widest avenue in the world.

Packing

Carry on, fearless traveller!



ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie
life@metronews.ca

What makes a perfect carry on? There are a few essentials that you should be bringing on board every flight.

An emergency toiletry kit just like those little ones people travelling in first class are given is perfect for freshening up prior to landing. Make it yourself and include toothpaste and toothbrush, moisturizer, lip balm, mini deodorant and a hairbrush. For women bring along mascara, lip gloss and tinted moisturizer. Make sure you go for small sizes and adhere to the rules and regulations on liquids and gels. Each container must be 100 ml or less and all of them have to be able to fit in one clear, closed, re-sealable plastic bag no more than one litre in capacity.
Remember that food items like yogurt and peanut butter are also considered liquids and gels so if you are bringing snacks for yourself or the kids bring dry ones. An empty water bottle that you can fill up on the other side of security is a must.

Be prepared! ISTOCK

I never bring a lot of extra clothes in my carry on, but a sweatshirt for warmth is a good idea. For women a pashmina is even better. It can be a blanket, pillow or a scarf and takes up less space. Toss in a spare pair of underwear and a bathing suit (if you are headed to the beach) in case of lost luggage.

Electronics such as an iPad, cellphone or camera have to go in your carry on. All electronic devices containing lithium batteries are prohibited in your checked baggage. On the other hand, don't carry on any electronics, such as a hair dryer, that you cannot turn on if requested to do so by a security screening agent. Bring along a good magazine or a book for when electronics need to be turned off during take-off and landing.

Large noise cancelling headphones are practical and helpful. They save you from having to buy cheap ear buds on board and act like a giant Do Not Disturb sign if you prefer not to engage in two hour conversations with your seat mate. Check out the Canadian Air Transport Authority website for a full listing of exemptions and prohibited items.

It's my position and I will be emotionally intelligent if I want to Heart at work.

Interacting with people means working with emotions, so get to know how your own feelings factor into the business world

MEGHAN GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

It's pretty hard to find a job description that doesn't mention strong interpersonal, teamwork, collaboration or universal communication skills.

This is why employers are putting a big emphasis on finding employees who have strong "emotional intelligence."

Whatever industry you plan on working in as a student or new grad hire, high emotional intelligence is never a bad thing. Read on to get the inside scoop on this skill.

Remember: Emotional intelligence includes both your emotions and the emotions of others, so develop this skill to incorporate all parties.
ISTOCK

What is emotional intelligence?

Emotional intelligence is a mix of various components, each of which has to do with how you interpret and engage with your emotions.

Acknowledging emotions

This means acknowledging not only your emotions but the emotions of those around you as well. Employers don't want your bad day to affect how you treat co-workers or clients. Also, recognizing the emotions of others is an important step to maintaining a successful work environment.

Understanding emotions

There will be times during your career when people will upset you without realizing that they have done so. For example, the way an email comes across, lack of recognition upon the completion of a task or a short comment from your boss or co-worker. Everyone in the office has a ton going on, which doesn't leave much room to take into consideration how something they said or did affected you. Understanding how emotions work in these types of situations will leave you a lot less stressed out, less worried and more confident.

Your thoughts?

@TalentEgg: #Questionofthe-Day: After an interview, what's the best way to follow up? And how long do you wait to do so?

- @charmyip: A quick thank you note and a #reiteration of the points discussed would be perfect within 24 hours!
- @JubleeW: A thank you note sent within 3 days.
- @AbacusRecruits: It's always best to wait at least a week.
- @mrstephenchin: 2-3 days in an email/voicemail...or over the phone!
- @ShabShah: reading these responses, it's interesting how varied the timelines are for different people. Personally, I'd wait at least a week!

Facilitating emotions

Knowing how to handle your emotions in a positive way (such as making people feel open to having a discussion with you and avoiding being defensive) makes everyone more productive. When working with clients and co-workers, having positive emotions versus negative makes everyone feel more comfortable. Monitor how you're facilitating your emotions by considering how your body language, tone and mannerisms come across.

Handling emotions

Sometimes you'll be in a situation where you have to keep a firm grip on your emotions and avoid expressing them in any way. The workplace is no place for heated arguments, for example. Inevitably, there will be situations throughout your career that push your limits, but it's crucial to always keep your cool and manage your emotions in a professional and appropriate way.

Strengthening your emotional intelligence

The first step to strengthening your emotional intelligence is learning about it and being aware of how this skill works and applies in the workplace. You're already doing just that! But reading and learning about this skill isn't enough. You must learn to use your emotional intelligence in real-life situations.

Start to consider how your emotions play out while with friends, peers, family, professionals and even strangers to get a good grasp of how you tick. Try and identify situations where you may be too liberal with your emotions or times where the emotions of others have a significant impact on your own mood.

Showcasing your emotional intelligence

It's hard for an employer to recognize a potential employee's emotional intelligence without actually seeing them in action. This is why it's important to showcase this skill during the application process in an effective way.

The first opportunity you have to showcase your emotional intelligence is during your application (in your cover letter, resumé or professional online profile).

Simply stating that you have strong emotional intelligence won't prove much. To successfully showcase this skill, expand on experiences that have helped you develop higher emotional intelligence.

The next opportunity you have to showcase your emotional intelligence skills is during the interview. You can do this by giving genuine responses, communicating accordingly and preparing an example of a situation where you've applied this skill.

Bring the phrase into play and explain how it's relevant to the job you're pursuing. Next, provide a concrete example of a situation where your emotional intelligence was an asset and helped you negotiate the challenge at hand.

Expanding to explain how you've developed this skill, how you applied this skill and the outcome it had on the situation at hand is an effective way of showcasing your emotional intelligence skills.

Should I stay or should I go now?

Benefits of business over pleasure. Taking one for the team on a paid vacation day can bring you more than just extra bucks

ROSIE HALES
TalentEgg.ca

Thanks to the multiple long weekends that grace the summer months, you may find yourself at the office, store or restaurant on a day when your friends and family are enjoying a paid day of rest.

While it's tempting to spend this time frowning and scowling at every person who approaches you, it's a good idea to remember that working on a public holiday definitely has its pros.

Though time off can be hard to pass up, many people choose to forego the odd cottage weekend to volunteer for these shifts because of these hidden benefits.

Working on a long weekend could maximize your earning potential

If your company offers overtime or holiday pay then this is one of the best parts about working on a public holiday. Sometimes companies will pay their employees time-and-a-half for their efforts on a public holiday — that's like coming to work for a normal day but getting paid like you stayed for an extra half day.

Public holidays make for a productive work environment

If you're hard at work on a specific project, then a holiday Monday is a perfect day to come in and do some work on it. The office will be quiet and you'll be able to buckle down with minimal distractions. Days like this pass far more quickly as you really have the chance to get lost in what you're doing.

Use the long weekends to make friends

Coming in on a vacation day can be a really valuable opportunity to get to know other people in your workplace better.

Make an impression

If your boss comes in to work on public holidays, following his or her lead can offer some real benefits.

- Demonstrating this kind of initiative can underscore how much you value your job and want to get things done.
- If you're hoping that your summer job or internship will become a full-time opportunity, working on a holiday shows your dedication to the company.

Maybe in this peace and quiet you'll finally be able to get that proposal done. ISTOCK

Get off that couch and into an office

From beach bum to accomplished employee. It's not too late to help your child find a summer job

ALISON BOWEN
Metro World News

If your son or daughter still is not picking up a paycheque this summer, it's not too late.

As a wealth management adviser, Ellen Perry has spent years advising people on how to keep not only business, but also families, thriving.

One of her pieces of advice? Get a summer job. They teach valuable life skills, whether interning in an office where your child would like to ultimately work or serving pizza slices.

After working with more than 100 wealthy families, she wrote A Wealth of Possibilities: Navigating Family, Money, and Legacy.

Although the book is geared toward families with money, her counsel can apply to parents and children across the board.

Perry gave us tips for getting your child off the couch and into a summer job:

Don't make it optional
Give them two weeks after school ends to lie around the house and sleep late — then, if they aren't employed, tell them you will find one for them (and that it is going to be far less interesting).

Help them brainstorm all the options
What are they good at? What experiences do they have that are helpful?

Stay out of the actual job search as much as possible
Don't make the calls for them, line up the interviews for them, pull strings for them. You are trying to teach them resourcefulness and resilience — you can't be too involved if they are actually going to learn those lessons.

Remember practical skills are useful
The job doesn't need to be fancy to be good for them. Waitressing can teach a lot about time management, pacing, customer service and multitasking.

Who's the boss?

An employer can be a great teacher

- Kids get honest feedback and learn to identify what the boss wants in terms of their performance and how to give it to them.
- Try not to be too fussy about the job or boss. Sometimes the hard situations teach the most.

If you put too much pressure on your child to find the perfect position, you're likely to drive them away from the hunt. As a parent it's important to remain positive and empowering. ISTOCK

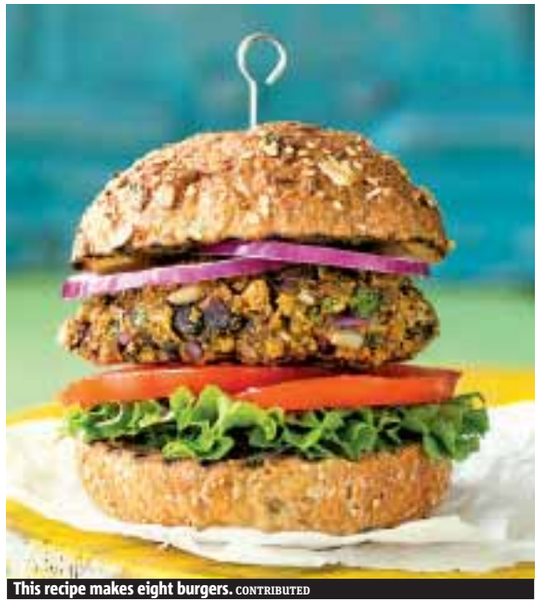
The anti-meat BBQ guide

Food. Food blogger Angela Liddon shares her favourite grease- and grime-free veggie recipes for a hot and sunny day. It's not all about melted cheese and steak you know.

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
Metro World News in London

Barbecue. Admit it. The second you read that word, your brain bombarded you with images of charcoal steak and roasted marshmallows.

"There are so many other options that showcase classic summer foods without sacrificing flavour or nutrition," Angela Liddon, food blogger and founder of the vegan friendly website Oh She Glows tells Metro. "A veggie burger can be both hearty and satisfying, as is a smoky grilled salad. And one thing is for sure, you'll feel light, energized, and anything but weighed down!" she adds.



This recipe makes eight burgers. CONTRIBUTED

Here are some of her favourite summer recipes, such as this veggie burger.

"These veggie burgers are one of the most popular recipes on my blog. They have all the right elements we love in a veggie burger — chewy, hearty, and they hold together well when cooking. You can freeze the burgers after cooking for quick and easy meals throughout the week."

Ingredients

- 3 tbsp ground flax seed
- 1/3 cup warm water
- 1 (15-oz) can black beans, rinsed and drained
- 1 cup grated carrots
- 1/3 cup finely chopped parsley
- 2 large garlic cloves, minced
- 1/2 cup chopped red onion
- 1/2 cup sunflower seeds
- 1 cup oat flour
- 1/2 cup spelt breadcrumbs (or breadcrumbs of choice)
- 1 tbsp extra-virgin olive oil
- 1-2 tbsp tamari, to taste
- 1/2 tbsp chili powder
- 1 tsp each dried oregano, ground cumin, fine grain sea salt
- freshly ground black pepper, to taste

1. Preheat oven to 350 F and line a baking sheet with parchment paper.

2. Whisk flax and water in a small bowl and set aside for 10 minutes.

3. In a large bowl, mash the black beans until a paste forms with a few chunky beans left intact for texture. Stir in the rest of the ingredients (including the flax and water mixture), adjusting spices and seasonings to taste if desired.

4. With slightly wet hands, shape dough into 8 patties. Pack dough tightly as this will help it stick together.

5. Cooking options: Bake patties at 350 F for 15 minutes, gently flip, and bake for another 15-20 minutes until patties are firm and golden. For grilling on the BBQ: pre-bake the patties in the oven for about 15 minutes at 350 F before placing on a pre-heated grill. Grill on each side for a few minutes until lightly golden.

6. Serve with toasted buns or lettuce leaf "wraps".

Drink of the Week

Almond Iced Tea

Not too sweet and slightly nutty, this summer mix is perfect for outdoor sipping.

By the glass

- 1 1/2 oz Belvedere Lemon Tea

Dessert. Summer Fever Strawberry Lime Granita

"Granita is not only easy to make, but it's the perfect solution for summer fruit on its last legs," says Liddon. "Strawberries, raspberries, and cherries would all work well. Traditional granita is sweetened with a white sugar, but this version uses agave nectar for an easy-on-the-waistline summer treat at just 85 calories per serving."

1. In food processor, process all ingredients until smooth. Adjust agave or lime juice to taste.

2. Pour the mix into a 9-inch square pan and place into freezer for a couple hours, uncovered. After 2 hours, scrape mix with fork to break up the ice chunks that are forming. An hour later, repeat this process. The granita should be ready after 5 hours, but this may vary based on your freezer temperature.

3. When the granita is firm and solid, scrape it with a fork or spoon and serve in a parfait glass. Cover and freeze leftovers in the freezer until ready to enjoy.

Ingredients

- 1 lb (450 g) fresh strawberries, hulled
- 1/3 cup agave nectar
- 5-6 tbsp fresh lime juice, to taste
- 1/2 cup water

Jets show they have faith in young core

NHL. Next task for players with new contracts is to step up, help make playoffs

When Zach Bogosian spoke to Winnipeg Jets general manager Kevin Cheveldayoff after signing a seven-year, $36-million US contract, his first comments weren't about that but rather new deals for teammates Blake Wheeler and Bryan Little.

In what has turned out to be a busy off-season, the Jets have committed $93.1 million to those three restricted free agents, a major showing of faith in a young core that has yet to make the playoffs. That's clearly the next step for Bogosian, Wheeler, Little, Andrew Ladd, Dustin Byfuglien and the rest of that group.

"A lot of people forget there are still a lot of young guys that have big roles on the team. Everyone is growing up together," Bogosian said this week. "We've had a lot of good players on our team for a couple years now. So, it's going to be a good challenge for us, and I think this group can do good things going forward."

Bogosian believes this group can bring the Stanley Cup to Winnipeg, the No. 1 goal the 23-year-old defenceman said he and his teammates talk about every year. But the Jets were four points out of a playoff spot in a shortened 2013 NHL season and eight out in their first year in Winnipeg in 2011-12.

Building blocks

Eleven players are signed for at least the next three years, including blue-chip prospects Mark Scheifele and Jacob Trouba, forward Evander Kane, goaltender Ondrej Pavelec and No. 1 defenceman Tobias Enstrom.

It doesn't look like much will change roster-wise going into next season. The Jets traded for right-wingers Devin Setoguchi and Michael Frolik, signed defenceman Adam Pardy, watched restricted-free-agent centre Alexander Burmistrov leave for the Kontinental Hockey League, and have not re-signed forwards Nik Antropov and Kyle Wellwood or defenceman Ron Hainsey.

"You have to try and show some consistency from an ownership group, from an organization that you have a plan in mind, that you're sticking to it, that you're not changing directions in mid-stream," Cheveldayoff said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Top dog: Osuna masterful in 3-hit shutout of Lincoln

Winnipeg hurler Edgar Osuna took the 'Dogs by the scruff of the neck on Tuesday night, and the Goldeyes cruised to an 8-0 victory over the Lincoln Saltdogs in the opening game of their doubleheader in front of 4,595 at Shaw Park.

Osuna, coming off Tommy John surgery that forced him to miss the entire 2012 season, tossed a complete-game shutout in the shortened seven-inning double-dip contest. The 25-year-old scattered three early hits while striking out eight and walking just one, improving his record to 3-1 on the season with a sparkling 1.46 ERA in six appearances.

Winnipeg's offence did all it needed to in the third, fourth and fifth innings as Casey Haerther knocked a three-run shot and Josh Mazzola stroked a solo round-tripper just two pitches apart in the third, while Ray Sadler crushed his own solo jack in the fourth to highlight his 4-for-4, two-RBI performance.

Lincoln starter Stephen Bougher was chased from the game in the fifth after allowing 13 hits and all eight runs.

The Goldeyes' win in the first game on Tuesday put them at 35-32 on the year, good for a second-place tie with the St. Paul Saints while they chase down the North Division-leading Fargo-Moorhead RedHawks.

Collaros picks apart top-ranked defence

Zach Collaros threw three touchdown passes in his first professional start Tuesday as the Toronto Argonauts defeated the B.C. Lions 38-12.

Starting in place of the injured Ricky Ray, the second-year quarterback showed tremendous poise under pressure against the CFL's No. 1-ranked defence, throwing for 253 yards on 21 of 25 passing.

The 24-year-old University of Cincinnati product, who spread the ball around to eight different receivers, also rushed eight times for 28 yards.

Meanwhile, the Argonauts' bend-but-not-break defence stymied Lions quarterback Travis Lulay and a B.C. offence that was toothless in the red zone.

With the victory, Toronto (3-2) snapped a six-game losing streak against B.C. (3-2).

Jason Barnes, Alexander Robinson and John Chiles caught TD passes for Toronto in front of a crowd of 20,064 at Rogers Centre, while rookie running back Curtis Steele, in the lineup for the injured Chad Kackert, rushed 12 times for 74 yards and two late TDs.

Paul MacCallum kicked four field goals for B.C. to move into fourth all-time on the CFL scoring list.

2014 Chevrolet Trax

- Type. Four-door, front- /all-wheel-drive compact wagon
- Engines (hp). 1.4-litre DOHC I4, turbocharged (138)
- Transmissions. Six-speed manual, six-speed automatic (opt.)
- Base price (ind. destination) $20,000

1.4 turbo-charged 4-cylinder engine.

Interior & Technology

The 1LT adds air conditioning, heated outside mirrors, roof rack and aluminum wheels. Stepping up to the 2LT gets you a rear-vision camera with backup warning, six-way power driver's seat and Chevrolet MyLink touch-screen communications and infotainment system with a Bose premium audio package.

Fuel Economy

It garners 7.8 l/100 km in the city and 5.7 highway when connected to a six-speed manual transmission (standard with LS model), or 8.1/5.9 with the optional six-speed automatic that's fitted to the LT and LTZ. Other than fuel economy, the turbo 1.4 boasts an ability to run at full song using regular-grade fuel.

Design

To avoid resembling a total box on wheels, the Trax's fenders bulge outward, the roofline slopes gently at the rear and the liftgate features wrap-around glass that has been dressed up with a spoiler-like hood.

Review. True North, strong and free, with help from this little machine

wheelbasemedia.com

Cross-border shoppers will tell you that the United States offers a greater selection of products than our home and native land. That might be true for some consumer goods, but it isn't necessarily so when it comes to automobiles.

For 2012, General Motors began importing the seven-passenger Chevrolet Orlando from Korea, eschewing the United States in the process. The same is true this year with the Mexico-built Trax. The supposed reason is that Americans want bigger and fancier automobiles and that Chevy's marketing types didn't want to risk cannibalizing sales of its larger Equinox. But with fuel prices currently on the ascendancy, perhaps GM is entertaining second thoughts.

In any event, Canadians in search of a small wagon with space for five, available all-wheel-drive and with an aversion to gas pumps should find the Trax to their liking. At first glance it's a bit of a chunky monkey; the styling is a bit stubby in a Chevy-Spark-kind-of-way, except the Trax is considerably larger. It's also about 16 centimetres taller than Chevrolet's Sonic hatchback (both cars share the same platform).

The dashboard and control panel are attractive and uncomplicated, but front-passenger seating is on the cozy side (this is a small wagon, after all). There's more shoulder room in back, but only if you limit the rider count to two. Luggage for four shouldn't pose a problem if everyone packs light, but with the rear seat folded there's stowage space for bulkier objects. The Trax's one and only engine choice is a 1.4-litre turbocharged four-cylinder borrowed from Chevy's Cruise and Sonic models that makes 138 horsepower and 148-pound-feet of torque. For an on-the-road price of $20k, the LS covers just the basics, but has 10 airbags, including rear side-impact and front-knee inflatables.

The Trax's interior is attractive and simplistic.

The premium LTZ gets dressed up with 18-inch wheels (16-inchers are standard), leather-like seat coverings (heated in front), auto-dimming rearview mirror and fog lights. Major options, depending on the model, consist of a power sunroof, navigation and an oil-pan heater that would make sense for Prairie winters.

For an extra $1,950, all-wheel-drive can be fitted to the 1LT, 2LT and LTZ. The system automatically engages when the vehicle accelerates from a stop to counteract torque steer (the tendency for the vehicle to pull to the left or right when accelerating), but reverts to front-wheel-drive once the Trax exceeds five km/h. It also seamlessly redistributes power to the rear tires as needed when the fronts begin to lose traction.

General Motors isn't alone in importing products that our southern neighbours can't obtain (Mercedes-Benz and Kia do the same). But given the Trax's utility, all-weather capability and overall thriftiness, it might be only a matter of time before Chevy's little can-do wagon is given a star-spangled welcome.

These Misfits know how to turn heads

Autopilot. Cleveland CycleWerks' retro bike models are going down a treat in Canada

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

Cleveland CycleWerks is based on the premise that the major motorcycle manufacturers are currently under-serving a demand for small, affordable — and stylish — motorcycles.

According to propaganda on its website, Cleveland CycleWerks founder and designer, Scott Colosimo, is determined to develop a global company that delivers, "kick-ass motor products for the world … We build bikes to turn heads and save you money."

That's how I first encountered them — they turned my head when I was trolling around a motorcycle show a couple of years ago.

While they've been on the U.S. market since 2009, they've only been available in Canada for less than a year. Lately, I've been seeing Cleveland Misfit models buzzing around my part of town, and whenever they do, they still manage to snap my head around.

The 250-cc class Misfit and Heist models are obviously retro and minimalist — just how I like my motorcycle stylings.

Minimalist and retro is also how so-called Hipsters like most anything, and the Cleveland bikes are definitely targeting and attracting this crowd. But according to their Canadian distributor, the bikes are also having a broader appeal in Canada than first anticipated.

"We sort of assumed Misfit would cater to young hipsters," says Neil Vanderkooi, director of business development at Visionary Motorsports, over the phone from the company's head office in Edmonton. "But once other people see the bike, they also realize it's a good bike for a good price."

Cleveland is home to The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and home to Cleveland CycleWerks, which conceives and markets a line of cool, small bikes, including Tha Heist (above) and Tha Misfit. CONTRIBUTED

Both Misfit and Heist sell for $3,499. "We're doing well in rural Alberta, for example, where we didn't think people would be interested in a lower displacement bike." Vanderkooi notes small bikes can appeal on many levels. They're a good first-time bike, or alternative for those not comfortable on the big bikes. You can also stick one on the back of an RV. And they can give a seasoned biker something different to play with for a change.

He adds the bikes also lend themselves to easy and cheap modification and customization — not always the case with more expensive and larger machinery. Heavy-duty motorcycle guys are also buying them for their girlfriends and wives. (A little bit sexist yes, but what can you do?)

Two more bikes, Ace and Hooligan, will join the Canadian offerings, as soon as they complete their Transport Canada certification.

Ace is in the "supermoto" mould, and therefore more modern in vibe than the others, but Vanderkooi says it was always the plan to have two distinct lines: retro and modern.

While conceived and designed in Cleveland, Ohio, all the bikes are actually built and assembled in China. Many in the biker community are pretty sticky about where they want their bikes built, and China is not generally on their preferred locale list, but Cleveland CycleWerks has never shied away from discussing their Chinese connections.

Obviously some people don't like the Chinese connection, says Vanderkooi, but it's an important element in the affordability story, and he asks rhetorically, what hasn't been made in China of late?

The 250-cc models are not designed for extended highway cruising, but Vanderkooi says there are some larger bikes in the works that will be. Stay tuned.

But let's hope those models aren't too big. Because as we all well know, size does indeed matter; sometimes things are just too big.

Flooded cars may now be flooding the market

Driving force. Beware: With so many vehicles damaged by the recent extreme weather many will want to sell on their damaged goods

JIL MCINTOSH
drive@metronews.ca

Advice

- Better safe than sorry. Cars written off in collisions are sometimes shoddily fixed and resold. Always check the vehicle's history, since these vehicles can be unsafe to drive.
- Mechanic's opinion. It's always best to have a trusted mechanic check over any used car you're planning to buy.

Following the recent floods in places like Toronto and Calgary, it's possible some water-damaged cars may have been quickly dried out and offered for sale to unsuspecting buyers.

"People should never purchase a used vehicle without a vehicle history report," says Anne Marie Thomas, manager of sales and new business development for Insurance-Hotline.com. "A lot of people buy the history report after they've purchased the car, and that's like closing the barn door after the horse is gone."

When an insurance company writes off a car, it doesn't necessarily mean that it can't be fixed, but that the repairs will cost more than the vehicle is worth. This write-off status is noted on the vehicle's registration. Such cars are commonly called "branded."

It's possible to repair a branded vehicle to the province's safety standards and have it reinstated for the road, but some unscrupulous owners or dealers will do just a quick cosmetic touch-up and offer the car for sale. A vehicle history report will indicate if the car has been branded, and if so, if it was subsequently repaired to provincial standards and recertified. If it wasn't, you can't put license plates on it.

Could this be your next second-hand car? TORSTAR NEW SERVICE

Water-damaged cars aren't necessarily written off, though, and the seller may not tell you that it got soaked. Watch for vehicles registered in places that got flooded, and that were put up for sale in other provinces a month or two after the disaster.

Check the car for clues. A mouldy smell is an immediate tip-off, but a car that smells very strongly of air fresheners could warn of a post-flood cleanup. Look in the engine compartment, glove box, in the trunk under the spare tire, under the dash, or in other hidden areas for dried mud or sand. Check the wiring, since flooding can turn it brittle. When you turn the key, all of the warning lights should come on for a short period. Be wary if some don't, because it could indicate that water got into the system.

Bring the horse to water

"A lot of people buy the history report after they've purchased the car, and that's like closing the barn door after the horse is gone."

Anne Marie Thomas, manager of sales and new business development for Insurance-Hotline.com.

Beware of new carpeting or seat upholstery. If you can, pull up a corner of the carpet to look at the condition of the floor, or reach under the seat to see if the underside is damp or dirty. Pull the seatbelts all the way out and look for water stains on the lower portion.

"A mechanic might be able to help with identifying a flooded car," Thomas says. "It depends on the extent of the damage. Some can be fixed, but others are beyond repair."
